The House On Mercy Street

By Florence Kerigan

Miss Angela set her fingers on a tiny little bell, and at once knew the throng of boys who were whooping madly up and down the hall and in and out of the rooms of the house on Mercy Street, came together in the living room and settled down to listen to the afternoons stories.

The house was built by Miss Angela. From the time she rented the little house and turned it into a clubhouse for the rough, tough, dirty little boys of the neighborhood, she had been their Queen. They exhibited her to their rough, tough, dirty friends with pride, and gradually became less rough, and less tough, and wasted their faces now and then.

On that particular afternoon, when the sun was high in the open window and the heat in the air was stifling, her head like a rusty metal globe, and sheek the faint perfume out of the bowl of incense on the table, she sat down in her chair and told them all them a story of knights and fair ladies and the spring. She settled herself in the chair, and the boys in a circle of faces with her brown eyes which Abe Rabinowitz said were "just like these here, now, poor Abe is a good boy, but he's a bad boy," smiled at them all, from Abe to the mysterious, well-dressed, perfect-men-jack who came in every day to play.

Then, very simply and dramatically, she told the story of Sir Galahad and the Holy Grail, and all her hearers listened with rapt attention. When she came to an end, they sat silent for a moment, then clambered for a moment.

Next, she told them a thrilling tale of the Knights of the Round Table, and followed it with others until a factory whistle told her it was five o'clock and closing time for the club-house.

Then, very quickly and dramatically, she told the story of Sir Galahad and the Holy Grail, and all her hearers listened with rapt attention. When she came to an end, they sat silent for a moment, then clambered for a moment.

Then, she told them a thrilling tale of the Knights of the Round Table, and followed it with others until a factory whistle told her it was five o'clock and closing time for the club-house.

That morning she had received a letter saying that she would have to leave the dear little house on Mercy Street, and that she would be gone for ever one of his friends. She had at once called up several influential men and tried to interest them in a campaign for the house, but the little club-house to carry on the work began, but without result. One of the men, John Daverton, told her firmly, that she must decide again to work—work—but that the poor of the city could not if they—wished, without such waste of money.

She was still with a heavy heart, but she had the thought of giving up her boys.

On Friday afternoon the boys were grouped about the piano singing a few songs, when a knock at the door stopped in the doorway.

Miss Angela recognized the character of the knock, and with a smile and a wave, went out with her husband, John Daverton, and went with him to the door. There, at the same instant Jack cried, "Dad!"

"The boys are yours," he said. "The man's voice was well under control, but Miss Angela could see that he was very angry.

"I am sorry I had to do this," he said. "I am sorry I had to do this." "Dad, I am sorry I had to do this." "Dad, I am sorry I had to do this." "Dad, I am sorry I had to do this." "Dad, I am sorry I had to do this."

"Why, it's preposterous," said Mr. Daverton. "I'm surprised at you, Jack. You, with all you have and all you are, coming here like this and staying with dirty ragamuffins."

"I am sorry, I have a mother,"

he said, "but I have a mother."

"Castorine," mother said, "I have a mother

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1, 1921

A vast amount of good work was accomplished on clean up day and as a result our town is neater and cleaner in every way. Each year the work of cleaning up the streets becomes a little lighter and it is well that it is so for the turn out of working workers was not nearly so good this year as in the past. And, therefore, the credit is the greater to those who did turn out. The school boys as usual accomplished wonders and cannot be given too much credit. It may be that some householders do not clearly understand that they must remove refuse adjacent to their property as some is still piled up in lanes, and if not moved at once some court cases will soon be heard of.

For thirteen weeks the Calgary Daily Herald has run a very interesting campaign in the columns of The Call, and we are pleased to have a letter from Mr. O. L. Spener, manager of the Herald advertising department, expressing appreciation of our service, and we have reason to believe these ads were read by Call readers with no small interest, if we may judge from the comments we have heard. Each ad supplied a fund of information regarding the publishing of a great daily newspaper that could scarcely be obtained otherwise and was an education that will bring the reader and publishers closer together. The Call believes these ads, though paid for at our regular rates, were a direct benefit to The Call in different ways. We believe, too, it will be of advantage to many of our advertisers in aiding them in planning their own advertising. The Call wishes the Herald a continuation of the success it is now enjoying and deserves to enjoy, particularly as we have followed it closely in its ups and downs for nearly thirty years past.

WHAT DO WE PLANT?

What do we plant when we plant a tree?
We plant a chestnut which will cross the sea,
We plant a mast to carry the sail,
We plant the beams to withstand the gales—
A keel, a keelson, and prow and knee;
We plant a ship when we plant a tree.

What do we plant when we plant a tree?
We plant the houses for you and me,
We plant the pillars, the shingles, the floors,
We plant the studding, the laths, the doors,
The rafters and roof, all that be;
We plant a home when we plant a tree.

What do we plant when we plant a tree?
A thousand boughs that we daily see;
We plant a spire to out-climb the crag,
We plant a tree for our country's flag,
We plant a shade, from the fierce sun free;
We plant all wealth when we plant a tree!

Renew Your Membership
In The RED CROSS

During the war everybody gave to the Red Cross. In these Western Provinces, hundreds of thousands of citizens joined in the greatest flood of gifts ever poured through a single voluntary organization.

Because the need was vital, the emergency ever pressing, there was little formality of membership. Everybody belonged to and was a part of the war-time organization of the Red Cross.

Red Cross now has peace-time duties just as important to humanity as its greatest service of devotion in time of war. The Red Cross Societies of the world have leagued together in a broad-gauge, carefully planned continuous campaign

For the Improvement of Health, the Prevention of Disease and the Mitigation of Suffering Throughout the World.

This work is to be carried out at home, right here in our own country by our own Red Cross and the one corresponding in every way to the one corresponding in the World League of Red Cross Societies.

The Red Cross peace-time crusade for good health is a separate and distinct work of the Red Cross or the great task that it is still carrying on, growing out of the care of those who suffered in the peace period. It is a crusade to bring health and happiness of every citizen through the enrollment of his or her individual membership. The Membership Fee is $1.00 per year. That is a sum of dollars when you enroll your name is all the money the Red Cross is asking of you.

Eastern Editors Will Visit The West During The Next Week

On Thursday, June 2nd, at 4 p.m. special train bearing many eastern publishers and their wives will leave to attend the annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association which is to be held in association with the Exposition and Industrial Fair.

The party is made up of prominent editors from Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario, and when gathered together in the 200 or more of the Western Province members, will constitute the largest press gathering ever held in the West.

Through the courtesy of the C.P.R. the C.M.H. and G.T.M. a very fine special train of ten cars will be made up. The Easterners will use this train on the entire trip.

The going journey will be made over the Canadian National lines, and the return over the Canadian Pacific. The trip will be made ranging from three hours to 24 days, and these stops will include many important points in the West.

On the way out stops will be made at Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Jasper Park, Kamloops; while on the return visits will be made at Lake Louise, Banff, Calgary, Regina, Port Alberni, Victoria, Vancouver there will be much entertainment.

At Victoria the Easterners will give a party in honour of the visitors.

As the press party is to stop at a number of places, there is no doubt many persons in the West, who still subscribe for the "old home paper," will take the opportunity to "see their editor" at one of the stops along the line. If this is done it will make the Westerners much more welcome, as nothing will delight the editors more than to shake the hands of old friends and subscribers in the West.

The Eastern editors will have a very pleasant duty, that of "writing up" the West. The railways will endeavor to give the best and most restful parts of the great West, and no doubt the Western men and women will have a hearty welcome ready.

The taking of such an extensive trip by Eastern weekly newspaper publishers may mean that some of the local weeklies will have to be closed during an issue, but we are sure that the papers of the West will be well supplied, for their editors will come back home inspired and encouraged to furnish to their readers some interesting reading about the Canadian West.

Join the Red Cross

When the Great War ended—yes, even before the joyful news of the signing of the Armistice, the Red Cross had been of service to the people of the stricken land, and in consideration of the enormous contributions in the repair of the awful damage inflicted upon the world. It was not the material damage so much that was the cause of deep concern, far given them, and money, destroyed cities, towns, industrial establishments, railroads, and millions of people were left homeless.

The real problem were the people themselves. With millions of the world's most able-bodied and virile young men killed, or maimed and weak for life, with millions of women helpless in every way, as a result of the strain and hardship, and the young children undernourished during the most vital years when wholesome food and plenty of it should have been forthcoming, and with the mental view of everybody far from normal, in various ways disoriented, what all thoughtful men and women have been trying to do is to help these people to get back to normal. And the place to start in these respects, what of the State itself, because after all, a nation is lost if what its people are. It is not small, or great industries, or large cities, or famous buildings that make a nation, but the people themselves.

The war had made clearly visible some things a quarter of a century of peace might have revealed with such impressiveness. The war had given us a revelation, for it must always be, of the resources, of the physical and mental strength of the people of the world. And this was the ordinary soldier, peasant and artisan stuck to their duties and did them with a courage and endurance which have never been surpassed. The spirit of the race had not degenerated. But the war had revealed also the steadily increasing power of the economic and political forces of the countries. In the alleged progress of civilization, in the organization of industries, in the development of big business for creating and controlling empires, regard for the intrinsic worth of human life—of men and women—was conspicuously lacking under some of the conditions of the war, a large extent reflected.

Think of the significance of these figures: During the last year of the war, the number of men called up to the service in the U.S. was 2,415,000. Of these, 1,000,000 were killed, 200,000 were disabled, 600,000 were lost, these might be described as physical weeks, and one as a chronic invalid with a pretension held on life. Since that was the physical condition of most of these most vigorous, what would be the condition of the world, the young and the old, the future after the war? The examination of the men called to the colors revealed conditions somewhat similar. In Canada, with all her advantages of open spaces and natural resources, the number of men called up to the service in the year 1916, 1,200,000, over one-half, were found to be unfit for military duties, and 1,000,000 were found to be physically disabled and disabled.

As a result of these startling and sobering alarming statistics, when the members of the League of Nations were drafted, Article XXIV was inserted which binds every nation joining the League to encourage and promote a national Red Cross Society having as purposes "the improvement of health, the prevention of disease, and the mitigation of suffering through the promotion of mutual了解 and cooperation among the peoples" because of its international character, its spiritual organization, and its wonderful record during the war.

It is the profound conviction of those who are impressed with the importance of the Red Cross that its expression in the Red Cross programme as it is now outlined that their realization is possible through the endorsement and support which universal membership in the Red Cross alone can give. Worldwide and popular membership in the Red Cross, therefore, is the chief factor in the success of the League.

To attain that universal membership, a world-wide equipment campaign is being held this year. The tasks in the three Provinces of Canada are June 5 to 11. Membership in the Red Cross involves an annual contribution of one dollar, and of twenty-five cents for boys and girls under 18. This sum, but that is not all, is the amount of money directed by the Canadian Red Cross Society to the Red Cross in the world.

In the intelligent interest, the active participation of the well-educated and the well-to-do, the world-wide Canadian Red Cross Society has made the Red Cross a success, and to assure this it sets every man, woman and child to join the Red Cross during the week of June 5 to 11.

Following all previous wars, the Red Cross with its work for the welfare of the soldiers and sailors, and the work of the Red Cross in the field of home government, the Red Cross had to undertake all the work of the Red Cross in the field. Now, however, while carrying on its great Peace-time programme, for the welfare and betterment of all mankind, it will be maintained fully equipped, educated and ready to serve Canada again as called to serve.

The Red Cross is the only organization in the world that carries the torch of hope more brightly resolved to dedicate itself to the task of carrying out the obligations bequeathed upon it in the Covenant of the League of Nations, it can be trusted to faithfully endeavor to render real Peace-service to Canada and its people. Therefore—Join the Red Cross.

Last Link Will Give Through Connection to Skagway.

A resolution urging the Federal Government to build a Yukon trunk road and telegraph system connecting Skagway with the Yukon Valley was unanimously adopted by the Yukon Territorial Legislative Assembly, the legislative assembly, the resolution states, now reaches within 260 miles of Fort Ross, thus necessitating building only the 140 miles of road required to connect the coast to the interior, through connections to the coast at Skagway, where large lines run, connecting with Prince Rupert and Vancouver, over the year round.

Will Complete

The "Bismarck"

British Sailorships Will Take Over

Ship Left Incomplete By Germany.

Messrs. Hardison and Wolff, the British shipyards, are to send a party of engineers to Germany to complete the completion of the Bismarck, the biggest ship in the world, which is to be the White Star Majestic.

She was specially mentioned in the Peace Treaty, and it was agreed that she should be completed and delivered.

But process has been very slow, and there have never been more than two or three hundred men working on her.

Germany has been extremely slow in getting this ship completed, and it is now thought that the British will be unable to get anything like definite instructions from the Allies.

It is the profound conviction of those who are impressed with the importance of the Red Cross that its expression in the Red Cross programme as it is now outlined that their realization is possible through the endorsement and support which universal membership in the Red Cross alone can give. Worldwide and popular membership in the Red Cross, therefore, is the chief factor in the success of the League of Nations.
